ARMIA SHEHATA

Leftback/Midfielder | CLASS OF 2028

Armia Shehata is a versatile left-footed Italian player who can operate as a left back, wing-back, midfielder or left winger in a front three. Standing at 6'0" (184 cm), he combines technical quality, composure in possession and the ability to contribute effectively in both defensive and attacking phases. One of Armia's main strengths is his confidence when progressing the ball. He remains composed under pressure, carries the ball forward with control and is comfortable building play from defensive areas. His technique and tactical flexibility also allow him to play higher up the field, where he can attack space, combine with teammates and create opportunities from the left side.

Armia is also a dangerous set-piece taker, with a proven ability to score directly from free kicks. His left foot, shooting technique and confidence from dead-ball situations make him an additional attacking threat.

Armia has consistently competed at the Regional Elite level in Italy and has developed within respected football environments, including Accademia Inter, Club Milano and Aldini. These experiences have strengthened his technical ability, tactical awareness and understanding of different roles and systems.

He has played as a traditional left back, as a wing-back in a five-player midfield, in midfield and as a wide attacker in a front three. His versatility makes him particularly valuable to teams that require players capable of adapting during matches while maintaining composure and quality on the ball.

Armia's potential was further recognized when he was invited to train with the Hellas Verona Primavera setup. His left-footed profile, physical development, technical confidence, set-piece ability and experience at a consistently high youth level make him an interesting Class of 2028 prospect for college soccer programs in the United States.
